"...they were typical of the International Brigaders of many countries who gave their support in the hour of need. They went to support the Spanish people, based on ideas of internationalism and freedom that have been carried forward to persuade people to defend freedoms elsewhere. It is not only right to remember these people, it is also about education. We live in strange times, with le Pen, Fortuyn and the BNP demonstrating fascism is not dead. We must be vigilant in fighting fascism and racism every day."

Jack Jones - 5th. November, 2002

"I am not here to make you sad with tragic recollections of a heroically fought war, or to make you happy with my survival into an old age. I am here to make you boil with anger, the powers that supported Franco in Spain are still active today and their reach is global,

The same U.S corporations that supplied the fascist with oil in Spain are today pilfering the oil of the Iraqi people. The British Government that lied to the people while secretly giving financial credits and hypocritically allowing arms to be smuggled to Spanish fascists is the same government that lied about weapons of mass destruction and led the British people into a war they did not want. La lucha continua!"

Bob Doyle 12th September 2006
